New data protection regulation Valid as of May 25th, 2018

JTCamp (Junior and Teen Camp Repond and Co, based in Switzerland) handles your personal data with great care. In the framework of the new EU General Data Protection Regulation, we have updated our data protection declaration.

. GENERAL PROVISIONS

Principle

The protection of our customers' privacy is very important to us. Hereinafter, we set out the principles we follow and for what purpose we collect and process personal data (information that determines your identity or allows us to identify you; referred to hereinafter also as "data") via this website, and other websites and applications (referred to hereinafter as "website") operated by JTCamp.

We collect and process your personal data carefully, only for the purposes described in this Privacy Statement and only to the extent necessary as defined therein and within the scope of the applicable legal regulations. We only store your personal data to the extent and if it is required for the performance of our services or as we are legally obligated.

The general conditions of the JTCamp also applies to this, in addition.

Use of the website and cookies

You can visit the website and obtain information about our offers without disclosing personal data. We only request personal data where required for the performance of our own services and for the processing of transactions that you carry out with JTCamp or our partners.

When you access our website, our system automatically records technical information about the computer accessing it. The data collected is information about the browser type and the version used, the operating system, the internet provider and the IP address of the user, the date and time of access, the websites from which the user's system obtains access to our website, and the websites accessed by the user's system via our website.

JTCamp uses so-called browser cookies to make it easier to use the JTCamp website, and other websites and applications operated by JTCamp, and to obtain ideas for improving the information and services accessible via the website. This analysis is carried out anonymously, i.e. without reference to personal data. In our Cookie Policy we inform you about the use of cookies and analytical services. You will find the policy below.

Storage of customer data

For accounting reasons, JTCamp generally stores the personal data collected from customers for processing bookings for 10 years after the last processing operation. We store other data if it is necessary for the execution of the contract and to safeguard our rights. We reserve the right to apply longer statutory and operational storage requirements and reasons.

Personal data collected for marketing activities is generally deleted as soon as the purpose of the activity has been met.

Data security

We protect your personal data by means of appropriate technical and organizational security measures and store it solely on our secure servers. The website is secured against loss, destruction, and manipulation by means of customary measures in accordance with the state of the art and against access, modification, or distribution by unauthorized persons. Especially sensitive data (e.g. access data for your profile account) is encrypted during transmission via the internet (SSL).

However, JTCamp does not assume any guarantee for the security of your data. It is your responsibility to make an up-to-date back-up of the transferred data always and store it separately from the website. You are also responsible for creating a secure password for your customer account, keeping it safe and changing it on regular basis.

Rights of customers

You have the right to information, correction, deletion, and transferability of your data. Furthermore, you have the right to restrict processing.

You have the right to object to the processing of your personal data. An objection only has future effect and does not affect previous processing. If, because of the objection, JTCamp is no longer able to perform the services contractually agreed with you, the objection is deemed to be a breach of contract by the customer and JTCamp has the right to terminate its contract with you without notice. Payment obligations already contractually entered into by the customer remain in force and no refund will be given under any circumstances.

For the assertion of these rights, you can contact JTCamp under “contact”.

If JTCamp does not comply with the applicable data protection law, you have the right to file a complaint directed at the competent regulatory authority.

Updates

We review our Privacy Statement regularly and update it as required. We will inform you of any important changes (e.g. on our website).

Data processing by third parties in Switzerland and abroad

JTCamp allows personal data to be processed by third parties in Switzerland and/or abroad (also in countries where legislation does not guarantee appropriate data protection) for operating the website and to meet the purposes stated in this Privacy Statement.

In the case of the transfer of data to countries without appropriate data protection, JTCamp ensures that the measures required are implemented (generally by using providers who recognized data protection agreements, e.g. based on standard contractual clauses of the EU), to protect personal data in accordance with the applicable data protection law.

External data recipients

External recipients of personal data include service providers in the areas of hotel, transport, marketing, customer feedback, IT, payment services and credit agencies, platforms for sending newsletters,

Social media tools partner companies as well as government offices and authorities.

Newsletters

Upon request, we will keep you informed about relevant developments and offers from JTCAMP. We use the so-called double opt-in procedure to subscribe to our newsletter: When you subscribe to our newsletter on the website, for example by clicking a confirmation field, we will send you a notification e-mail. You can confirm your subscription by activating the relevant link. If you no longer wish to receive newsletters from JTCAMP, you can either unsubscribe free of charge in the newsletter itself or by contacting us.

We process your data associated with the newsletter to send you news about and related to JTCAMP and our partners. In addition, we also process and use the e-mail address you have entered to send you personalized offers associated with the newsletter.

If a link in the newsletter directs you to our websites, you also give us permission to process and use your IP address, together with geodata, web beacons or similar technologies, to verify whether the offers presented to you during this communication meet your requirements.

JTCAMP works together with external service providers for the dispatch of the newsletter.

Offers from third parties in the scope of service

In the scope of the services, JTCAMP will show you offers from third parties (e.g. from hotels or car rental companies) on its website; these offers are created on an anonymous basis. If you have given us your consent to this effect, we will also show you such offers as part of the communication.

Insurance

While booking, JTCAMP will offer you accident insurance on its website, provided by a third party. If you obtain the insurance (i.e. if it is "ordered" online), JTCAMP receives data from you, performs the billing directly on behalf of the third party (payment is made to JTCAMP) and sends data to the third party, such as the name of the person applying, the length of the trip and date of birth.

Cookie policy

JTCamp uses what are known as browser cookies (hereinafter referred to as "Cookies") to simplify the use of this Website and other websites and applications operated by JTCamp (hereinafter referred to as the "Website") and to obtain information that can help us to improve the information and services made available via the Website. This Cookie Policy provides you with information on the use of Cookies on the Website.

How cookies work

Cookies are small text files that a User's browser stores in a directory designed for this purpose on his/her computer. Cookies mean, for example, that text entries you have made in form fields on the Website are saved so that you do not have to enter the same information again the next time you visit the Website or when you want to use a different function on the Website.

Cookie settings

You can decide for yourself whether our Website's web server can save Cookies on your computer or not. You can opt to change your browser settings so that they do not allow Cookies to be accepted or saved at any time. Alternatively, you can opt to be shown a warning message every time before you accept Cookies, or you can set your browser up in such a way that it only accepts Cookies from certain websites. You can also delete Cookies that have already been saved at any time.

We would like to emphasize that if you decline Cookies on the Website, some functions on the Website may be limited or unavailable. As a result, to make it easier to use the Website, we recommend that your browser settings accept Cookies on the Website.

Web analysis services

We use web analysis services to analyze the use of the Website in general and to gain insights into how to improve our offering. The web analysis services use Cookies to collect data. The information generated in this process (e.g. IP address and browser type) can be transmitted, after being rendered anonymous, to a server of the web analysis service in Ireland or abroad to be saved and processed there. You can use corresponding browser settings or set up an opt-out cookie of the web analysis service in question to prevent the service from placing Cookies on your computer and collecting data.

Online marketing networks

JTCamp uses internationally active online marketing networks such as Google, Facebook, and its affiliates (but not limited to) to operate its online marketing measures (e.g. banners or affiliate programs). These networks use Cookies to be able to focus marketing measures on the identifiable needs of customers. You can set opt-out Cookies to prevent these online marketing networks from placing Cookies on your computer and collecting data.

Valid as of May 2018, subject to changes without prior notice.
